

"This outfit is a perfect blend of polish and personality for a dynamic day in the office."

"Afternoon Brainstorm or Client Call (3 PM - 5 PM): Layer a tailored trench or wool coat over the cardigan if heading out. Add acetate-frame sunglasses and carry a leather document pouch or laptop case to maintain a polished editorial persona without overdoing it."

In this tenth edition of the ClayHouseOffice LookBook, we explore the rhythm of a modern man's week—where personal style meets professional flow. From sharp editorial mornings to spontaneous weekend escapes, each look is built for the man who moves with intention. Designed for content editors, creative professionals, and thinkers on the go, these outfits balance structure and ease, refinement and practicality. Whether you're dressing for back-to-back meetings, catching a flight, or stepping out for Sunday air, this lookbook offers sophisticated simplicity and wearable storytelling for every day of the week.

---

This refined Monday ensemble is designed for the discerning content editor navigating a day stacked with back-to-back meetings. The wool-textured black cardigan delivers quiet authority with its clean lines and subtle branding, layered over a sand-hued button-down shirt that adds just the right amount of contrast and professionalism. Paired with washed black denim in a subtle flare cut, the look stays fashion-forward yet grounded—ideal for both creative energy and editorial sharpness. Finished with rich brown leather Chelsea boots, the outfit balances comfort with edge, allowing ease of movement between office meetings and on-location reviews.

Outfit Transition

- Morning Office Hours (9 AM - 12 PM): Keep the cardigan buttoned for a structured silhouette. The earthy tones signal maturity and editorial clarity—perfect for performance reviews or strategic planning sessions.
- Lunchtime Coffee Meeting (1 PM): Unbutton the cardigan, cuff the sleeves, and subtly untuck the shirt hem just enough for a relaxed, creative editor vibe. Switch the black denim belt for a woven tan leather belt to bring warmth to the midday conversation.
- Afternoon Brainstorm or Client Call (3 PM - 5 PM): Layer a tailored trench or wool coat over the cardigan if heading out. Add acetate-frame sunglasses and carry a leather document pouch or laptop case to maintain a polished editorial persona without overdoing it.

For a content editor whose Tuesday includes a morning flight and an evening client dinner, this layered look strikes the perfect balance between comfort and elevated edge. The base features a softly structured plaid shirt that reads effortless yet thoughtful, layered under a textured blue knit zip-up jacket that adds warmth without bulk—ideal for unpredictable airport temperatures. Washed black denim grounds the outfit with a relaxed yet polished silhouette, complemented by sleek black zipped ankle boots for easy transit through terminals and transitions between meetings. Tortoiseshell sunglasses add editorial flair while the rich suede holdall is both functional and luxurious—fitting for carry-on essentials and camera gear.

Outfit Transition

Swap the ribbed knit jacket for a tailored navy or charcoal blazer from your luggage, allowing the plaid shirt to hold the spotlight with a sharper finish. Freshen up with a spritz of fragrance and switch out your tote contents to a slim leather folio for the client dinner. Optional: tuck in the shirt and add a slim leather belt for a more put-together edge without sacrificing comfort.

This Wednesday look leans into light layering and soft contrast, perfect for a midweek mix of creative meetings and casual catch-ups. The base starts with a beige textured knit tee—breathable yet refined—paired with a light-wash denim-on-denim combo that feels confidently relaxed. The cropped denim jacket adds structure and a subtle edge, while black derby shoes keep the look grounded and polished. The standout detail? A supple green holdall that adds a modern, fashion-forward pop of color—suggesting practicality without losing aesthetic intention.

---

Outfit Transition

---

For an evening gallery visit or low-lit dinner downtown, ditch the denim jacket for a charcoal or olive overshirt with a stronger silhouette. Switch the holdall for a compact leather crossbody or clutch for a sleeker after-hours presence. Freshen up the knit tee by rolling the sleeves for a more styled appearance, and consider swapping the derbies for a chunkier sole or minimal loafer to bring in subtle contrast. Add a soft fragrance and you're effortlessly set for the evening.

This outfit is a perfect blend of polish and personality for a dynamic day in the office. The deep red buttoned cardigan adds a bold, confident touch while still feeling approachable—ideal for brainstorming meetings or casual presentations. Paired with structured tan trousers, the look maintains professionalism without being stiff. The chocolate suede Chelsea boots ground the outfit in style and comfort, making it easy to move from desk to coffee run to impromptu creative huddle. Classic black frames tie it all together with a touch of intellectual charm.

Outfit Transition

- Morning Commute / Office Start (8 AM – 10 AM):
- Keep the full outfit as is. Optional addition: a smart wool overcoat in grey or camel for warmth.
- Carry a leather laptop tote or structured backpack.
- Midday Brainstorm / Team Session (11 AM – 2 PM):
- Remove coat if indoors. Slightly unbutton the cardigan for a more relaxed silhouette.
- Swap glasses for clear blue-light lenses if you're screen-heavy.
- Optional: add a slim-fit white tee or lightweight mock neck underneath for subtle layering.
- Afternoon Coffee / Offsite Creative Stop (3 PM – 5 PM):
- Roll up sleeves to elbow for casual flair.
- Add a navy or olive cotton cap for an unexpected creative twist.
- Optional: switch out the trousers for dark denim if stepping into a more informal creative studio space.
- Evening Catch-Up / Event / Gallery (6 PM – Late):
- Trade the cardigan for a cropped black utility jacket or a leather bomber.
- Add a silver or black leather strap watch.
- Swap the suede boots for black zip-up boots or leather derbies for edge.

Friday leans into calm confidence with this elevated Nordic-inspired ensemble. The mohair-blend sweater, featuring a textured fair isle yoke in earthy browns and taupes, exudes warmth and quiet sophistication. Paired with pleated cream drawstring trousers, the look blends traditional knitwear with contemporary tailoring. The soft suede lace-ups in a deep chocolate hue ground the outfit, while amber-tinted sunglasses add a final touch of curated cool. Perfect for a day of casual meetings or a working lunch in the city, this look balances comfort and class with ease.

Outfit Transition

Day:

- Keep the sweater as the hero piece — it reads cozy yet statement-making.
- The light trousers and suede lace-ups make it ideal for daytime movement between indoor and outdoor settings.
- Pair with a structured camel coat or parka if commuting or walking through cooler spaces.
- Accessories: leather folio or structured tote for documents or laptop; fragrance: something warm and woody like Maison Margiela By the Fireplace.

Evening:

- Swap the drawstring trousers for tailored wool pleated trousers in a deeper tone (dark brown or charcoal) to elevate the look.
- Exchange the suede lace-ups for a sleek Chelsea boot or leather derbies for a more polished silhouette.
- Add a watch or subtle jewelry (brushed gold or brown leather strap).
- Optional: layer a fine cashmere scarf and tuck the sweater slightly into the waistband for a neater line.
- Fragrance switch: go deeper with Tom Ford Oud Wood or Dior Fahrenheit.

This “Out of Office Saturday” look blends relaxed sophistication with playful weekend energy, making it ideal for leisurely strolls, farmers markets, or brunch with friends. A striped tee with maroon accents anchors the outfit with subtle retro charm, layered effortlessly under a mustard zip-up knit for warmth and texture.

The beige utility cargo pants bring both comfort and function, while white suede sneakers keep things grounded with a clean, sporty finish. Topping it all off, a woven bucket hat adds a touch of sun-ready flair, perfectly capturing the carefree spirit of a well-deserved Saturday off.

---

This “Sunday Outdoors” ensemble strikes a perfect balance between cozy and elevated, ideal for a leisurely afternoon in the park or exploring the city’s quieter corners. The soft sage knit brings a calm, nature-inspired tone to the look, pairing seamlessly with rich brown corduroy trousers that add texture and seasonal warmth.

A black crochet bucket hat introduces a modern, youthful edge while offering sun protection. Finishing touches like polished black derbies elevate the outfit just enough, and the olive monogram duffel lends a statement of luxury practicality—perfect for carrying a book, a blanket, or a bottle of wine for a slow Sunday escape.

ALL THE LOOKS

SCAN QR
FOR MORE
LOOKBOOKS

