

NORTH SIDE RAIN

ISSUE 5

“There is something about sudden heavy rainfall on a sunny day, weather that challenges your outfits’ versatility. It wasn’t just rain, it gave me a different idea on how to dress for unpredictable weathers in the North.”

“One post that i saw a week ago suggested that Quiet Luxury is boring now , even though i beg to differ, that statement to me implied that there is a need for new combinations and a fresh approach to personal style.”

“I still see 2025 as the year that really births the Uniform dressing era, elevated uniform dressing to be exact. lace-ups will be dominant but boots brother...boots.”

“When i said “fresh approach & new combinations” i meant unusual pairings like zip-up jackets and pin stripes. Earth tones have had a great start to the year, be mindful of your colours.”

“Although jacket on jacket layering is only slowly on the rise, which i think will be a huge trend in the winter and has not yet dominated the scene, you should probably start exploring layering. On a look like this you can add a jacket on top, find out more on layering when you scan the QR code.”

“T-shirts as a bottom layer are a new hack, graphic, stripped or solid colour t-shirts can be worn under a shirt or a cashmere cardigan or a v-neck jersey.”

“Find ways to have fun with your clothes, not everyday should be a formal day.”
